Keep the land beautiful-

Choose vitrified clay pipe... your guarantee against pollution.

No matter how hard you study the problem of choosing sewer pipe, the best reason for choosing vitrified clay pipe is that it lasts. It has been in use in sewer systems for thousands of years. And, some of those systems are still in use today.

No one has been able to improve on the original material. It is acid proof. It will not oval or collapse under the weight of the earth above it. It won't change its shape and restrict sewage flow. And, clay pipe joints set the industry's standard for tightness. Vitrified clay is the one sewer pipe, once properly installed, that never has to be replaced. Ever.

FROM A PROUD PAST...

Robert C. Edwards
President

Man's capability to produce vast quantities of new knowledge at such a rapid pace has become the accent of this century, particularly the past decade.

Our reservoir of information has thus become more than an instrument for perpetuating our culture. It has come to be a prime index of our greatness, functioning not only as a source of our strength, but as a measure of our fitness to survive and grow as a State and Nation.

Under the dynamic leadership of President Robert C. Edwards, Clemson University is meeting, head-on, the demands for creating new knowledge by concentrating the full measure of its teaching, research, and public service activities into many highly delimited areas of effort.

Relying heavily on the rich legacy of 78 years of meaningful service to the State and Nation, and more especially the achievements of the past decade, the University is gearing its programs of academic endeavor and physical expansion to solve the mysteries and unconquered horizons of the future.

At the doorway of the 70's, a brief digression to review Clemson's record during the 60's will further solidify the point that achievements of the present and aspirations for the future are mutually dependent on a productive past.

Significant events of the past decade were the peaceful accomplishment of racial integration (1963); the official change of the institution's name to Clemson University (1964); enrichment and expansion of academic programs; and the construction of $32 million in new and improved buildings and facilities.

The 60's were also the years in which . . .

- A tremendous 73 per cent surge in enrollment gave the University a total student body of more than 7,000 by the end of the decade as compared with 4,048 students in 1960-61.
- The number of main campus faculty increased from 326 to 646, with 59 per cent holding terminal degrees as compared with 33 per cent when the decade began.
- The University's total number of major academic units doubled with the addition of six new colleges and schools.
- Undergraduate courses increased from 706 to 1,221; graduate courses from 480 to 1,219.
- Thirteen new undergraduate curricula were initiated, which at the beginning of the 1969-70 academic year accounted for 23 per cent of the total undergraduate enrollment.
- Graduate education, in its infancy in 1960 with 25 Master's degree programs and four Ph.D. programs, matured into a prestigious academic unit which boasted 45 Master's programs and 23 Ph.D. programs in 1969-70.

to an exciting future

- Two-year college parallel programs for freshman and sophomore years were made available in Greenville and Sumter with the launching of satellite Clemson campuses.

- Thirty-six per cent of all degrees conferred by the University, or 8,020, were awarded.

- As the State's leading institution in agricultural teaching, research, and extension services, Clemson has made important contributions to the technological revolution in modern agriculture. The Livestock-Poultry Health Department continued as an effective weapon in control and eradication of animal disease. The 1967 South Carolina Meat and Meat Food Regulations and Inspection Law was given to this department to administer. Two years later, the Poultry Inspection Law was enacted and incorporated with meat inspection to form the Meat and Poultry Inspection Service of the University.

- Concern over the quality of man's environment became one of the great national issues. Clemson, which had already been involved in pollution control work for many years, made a commitment to be at the forefront in the national thrust to solve the problems of controlling and protecting the environment.

As the University moves farther into its fourth quarter-century, the tremendous accomplishments of the past will serve as fitting prologue foreshadowing greater and even more significant events for the future.

Clemson today faces the challenge of tomorrow with relevant educational programs focusing on conditions of our time and of times to come.

Merging a broad range of specialized talents into an interdisciplinary approach, the University is channeling student interest and eagerness to solve contemporary problems into realistic, constructive academic and research programs.

No one is better informed about or more concerned with Clemson's future than President Edwards. He is extremely conscious of the University's many responsibilities in living up to the accomplishments of its past; in maintaining the progress and achievements of the present; and in realizing the challenges and obstacles which lie ahead in the years to come.

"The potentials which the future holds for us are great beyond all expectation," Dr. Edwards says. "Through education, the impossible of today will be the commonplace of tomorrow. There is one thing we know — there is no status quo in the world today. We live in the midst of a tremendous technological and information explosion. This is why it is most imperative that the spirit of progress indicative of Clemson University, past and present, must and shall continue in the Clemson University of the future."

BILL McLELLAN

Athletic Director

Bill McLellan came up through the ranks in the athletic department. He literally became a jack of all trades, wearing six hats at a time—more if necessary. But his untiring efforts and his ability to grasp any situation paid off for him this past February.

It was then he was named athletic director, succeeding Frank Howard, which would have scared the pants off most people. But Howard himself had said before, "Bill's been doing all the work, so he ought to have the title."

McLellan came to the athletic department in May, 1958, and the personnel office listed him as assistant business manager.

But he handled the tickets, saw that the grass was cut, replaced light bulbs, purchased equipment and when normal working hours were over for most of the university, he was on the football field coaching. During the days of the intricate substitution, McLellan was the sideline bookkeeper for Howard.

Those who are close to McLellan marvel at his boundless energy. But seldom does he waste a minute. He can handle three or four people in his office at one time, all carrying on a different conversation . . . and all leaving with an answer.

Such is the legacy of Bill McLellan, the AD.

Joined athletic staff May 1, 1958, from Department of Agricultural Economics and Seed Certification at Clemson.

Responsibilities: Is in charge of the entire operation of the Clemson intercollegiate athletic program.

Background: Received graduate research assistantship while working on MS degree. Served as assistant agronomist 1 year, as assistant economist for 2 years. Was assistant business manager of athletics from 1958-66. Still found time to assist with coaching during this time. Was appointed assistant athletic director in 1966 and was named athletic director Feb. 4, 1971. 1971 will be 13th year on Clemson staff.

Personal Information: Born—Hamer, S. C., May 26, 1932. High School—graduated Dillon (S. C.) High School, lettered 3 years in football, 2 in baseball. College—Clemson, graduated with BS degree in agronomy in 1954, received masters degree from Clemson in agricultural economics in 1956, lettered 2 years in football. Married—Ann Rogers of Fork, S. Bowl Game Participation: 4—1 as a player with Clemson (1952 Gator); 3 as an assistant coach with Clemson (1957 Orange, 1959 Sugar, 1959 Bluebonnet).

HOOTIE INGRAM

Head Football Coach

The final won-lost record of Clemson last season was more disappointing to Hootie Ingram than anyone else. He came here with visions of giving the Clemson followers a winning brand of football.

And although it didn't happen in his first try, Ingram believes that a good foundation was laid and the dividends should begin showing up this season.

Assembling coaches from all directions and blending them with players using a new system was a complete new world for all concerned. A chorus doesn't sing a song perfect through the first time. But the second time around there's usually improvement.

And Ingram believes that will be true of his football team this fall. He stood 10 years on the sidelines as an assistant coach, carefully watching the moves of his head coach.

Some talent and leadership, along with a little luck, go into the making of a good football team. Ingram believes there'll be more talent on his second Clemson team and leadership where it counts. No one has control of luck, but Ingram hopes Clemson has its share.

If toil and sweat on the practice field are any criteria, Ingram should see better results each Saturday afternoon this fall.

Joined Clemson staff Dec. 17, 1969, from staff of University of Arkansas.

FRANK HOWARD

Assistant To The Vice President of Student Affairs

In the past two years, Frank Howard has dropped two titles and picked up another one. Following the 1969 season Howard relinquished his post of head coach to Hootie Ingram, keeping the athletic director's position. This past February Howard was named assistant to the vice president of student affairs when Bill McLellan was named athletic director.

But instead of being tied down to an endless task of paper work as his present title might indicate, Howard has turned his fulltime in a public relations role, making more speeches and appearances than he ever dreamed possible. His travels now carry him out more often and to many distant places. He has just completed a year where he served as chairman of the South Carolina Heart Fund when he was constantly making personal appearances for this worthy cause.

During his active coaching days, Howard was one of the most successful in business. He carried Clemson to six post-season bowl games while he was head coach which was nothing new to the 62-year-old veteran. He played in the 1931 Rose Bowl with Alabama and was an assistant coach when Clemson went to the 1940 Cotton Bowl.

When Howard retired after the 1969 season he had the longest tenure in the nation and all of his head coaching was at one school. He posted 165 victories, which ranked 19th among all coaches, active or retired. Howard became a task master of hard nosed football. His players knew it as did his opponents. No one did more for football in South Carolina than Howard and few in the nation carried a better reputation. Joined Clemson staff August, 1931, after graduation from college. Served as Clemson line coach nine years. Was Clemson head football coach 30 years, which at time of retirement, was longest tenure in nation. Appointed assistant to the vice president of student affairs Feb. 4, 1971.

Responsibilities: Clemson's goodwill ambassador. Makes a number of fund raising appearances in Clemson's behalf each year. Still in great demand as after-dinner and quarterback club speaker. 1971 will be 41st year on Clemson staff.

Personal Information: Born — Barlow Bend, Ala., March 25, 1909. High School — Attended Barton Academy, graduated from Murphy High School, Mobile, Ala., lettered 3 years in baseball, 2 in basketball, 2 in football. College — Alabama, graduated with BS degree in business administration in 1931, lettered 3 years in football, 3 years in baseball. College fraternity — Omega Delta Kappa. Married — Anna Tribble of Anderson, S. C., Aug. 23, 1933. Children — Mrs. Robert E. McClure (Alice) of Gastonia, N. C.; Jimmy (graduated from Clemson with honors, June, 1964, received master's degree in horticulture from Clemson, May, 1967). Research assistant, Crop Pest Commission, Clemson University. Grandchildren — Robert Howard McClure, Sam Howard McClure.

Bowl Game Participation: 8 — 1 as a player with Alabama (1931 Rose), 1 as an assistant coach with Clemson (1940 Cotton), 6 as head coach at Clemson (1949 Gator, 1951 Orange, 1952 Gator, 1957 Orange, 1959 Sugar, 1959 Bluebonnet).

ACC Comments:

What Got Me Interested in Football

GEOF HAMLIN

GEOF HAMLIN, North Carolina fullback: Despite the fact that I'm from Canada where hockey is the national sport, I've always been a football player. I was encouraged to start at an early age by my father and older brothers, Bill and Howie. Howie played pro ball in Canada for several years and Dad was a pro star in the '30s. My first encounter with organized football, however, did not come until I reached high school. There were only 18 players on our team, but I believe this actually helped me to develop into a better player. I had to play different positions on both offense and defense and that has certainly been an asset to me in college ball.

If you wanted to walk around with pride and make the "big time", then you played football. Finally, I would be remiss if I didn't mention my wonderful family who always encouraged but never pushed my development. Grandparents, parents and brothers, who also play, join together to make the fall an exciting, rewarding time of the year.

BILL BOBBORA, Wake Forest guard: My family, more than any other factor, was the main reason for my early interest in football. Both my father and my brother loved and played football, and I was affected very early by this family influence. In my grade school days, my parents would drive me miles into the city in order that I could play organized football for a large Chicago boys club. This presented some difficulty to my parents, but my father believed an early foundation was important if I planned to continue playing organized football. My family of five has always supported my football activities 100 per cent and I attribute most of my success to them.

BILL MEISTER, Maryland guard: When you're only 5-9 and 152 pounds in the ninth grade of the high school noted for the best football in the state, I guess it's only natural that you want to be a part of a winning team. Football was "the sport" at Fort Hill High and we always had someone on the University of Maryland team. My high school coach, Charlie Lattimer, was a graduate of Maryland and he always emphasized the importance of good grades in the classroom as well as good performances on the football field. Coach Lattimer was a member of Maryland's 1952 Sugar Bowl team. Two other Fort Hill graduates served as Maryland football co-captains, John Alderson in 1952 and Gene Alderson in 1957, so it was only natural that I wanted to become a part of the Maryland program. My mother wasn't too happy about my decision to play football, but she gave her consent because I wanted to play and be a part of a good high school program.

GEORGE SMITH, N. C. State middle guard: I first got the interest to play football from my father. He was a star at McKeesport High School and received a scholarship to Villanova University in 1940. There he earned honorable mention All-America at fullback. Later he was drafted by the old Chicago Cardinals and played two years in the NFL before being drafted into military service. He taught me all the skills of football at an early age. I played midget football at fullback, just like my Dad, but later in high school I changed from a back to a lineman. In high school I never had the idea that I would make it in college, but I started lifting weights to improve my size and strength. A nationally-ranked weight-lifter from Pittsburgh started me working with heavy weights and this has helped my strength increase at State.

JOHN McMAKIN

JOHN McMAKIN, Clemson offensive end: I don't think my interest in football can be attributed to any one factor. When I was growing up in high school, I played basketball and baseball in addition to football, and I enjoyed these other sports. But football meant a little more to me. It involved a more fierce competition than in most other sports. There was a greater challenge, which resulted in a greater sense of pride in having done well. For this reason, other sports seemed to become secondary. Since coming to Clemson I've concentrated mainly on football. I find that the more time I put into football, the more my interest grows.

DENNIS SATYSHUR, Duke quarterback: It's really hard to pin-point a particular time in my life when I started playing football. Coming from a rather athletic-oriented family, we always played whatever sport was in season. When fall came around, everything we did centered around football. For as far back as I can remember, we were always playing some kind of football: sandlot—touch in the street—always something. And when we weren't playing, we were watching. I wasn't fortunate enough to play on a grade school team, but I believe I was 12 or 13 when the city organized a Little Gridders Program. I guess that was my first exposure to organized football. After a year of that, I moved on to high school and four years of varsity ball. I was fortunate enough to play under an extremely successful coach and with some really great athletes.

GARY HELMAN, Virginia halfback: As a youngster I can remember playing one sport or another from one birthday to the next. Each had its own appeal and each gave hours of enjoyment, but it wasn't long before I decided to concentrate all my effort into the fall season. Since my first season as a nine-year-old midget griddier, every autumn has brought a new challenge; to be better than the year before. Football gave me goals to strive for and taught self-discipline. Winning matters only when you must work and sacrifice for it. The area where I grew up was also geared to the football season.

The Friendliest Woods...

More than 200 miles from campus, in the "land between the waters" where deer roam as free as the wind and where rice once ruled as king, Clemson University is helping shape the future of a new educational resource to serve the entire state.

The site of this far-reaching challenge for Clemson is Hobcaw Barony, 17,500 acres of wild forests and marshlands which knife into the Atlantic Ocean on the South Carolina coast at Georgetown. For a half-century the barony was owned by Wall Street financier Bernard Baruch who used it as a winter retreat and refuge from cares of the New York business world.

In 1958 the sprawling lands were bought from Mr. Baruch by his daughter Belle who had shared her father's countless happy hours of hunting and horseback riding at Hobcaw. This transaction helped to form the framework for an important decision by Miss Baruch which would bring Clemson University full into the picture 10 years later.

From her childhood days, Belle Baruch developed a deep appreciation for the natural beauty of Hobcaw Barony which she spoke of as "the friendliest woods in the world." In later years, this childhood love matured into a strong obligation to see that Hobcaw's resources would be preserved and used wisely.

In the last years before her death in April, 1964, at age 64, Miss Baruch spent much time in thought over what would become of the property after her death. Throughout this time an idea was taking form, a masterful accomplishment, and in a real sense a final expression of Belle Baruch's love for South Carolina which she liked to think of as her adopted state.

Miss Baruch decided to leave these thousands of acres for a purpose which would benefit all South

Carolínians. She determined that after her death the bulk of her estate should be used to promote teaching and research programs in South Carolina related to the forests, wildlife, and waters which she had come to love deeply at Hobcaw.

The machinery to achieve Belle Baruch's dream was established by her will of 1964. Under the direction of the Trustees of The Belle W. Baruch Foundation the barony would be used to support teaching and research in forestry, marine biology, and the care and propagation of wildlife and flora and fauna through the facilities of universities and colleges in the state.

But Hobcaw Barony actually owes the realization of its new mission as much to the wisdom of another "transplanted" South Carolínian as it does to Belle W. Baruch.

This other "transplanted" South Carolínian is Miss Ella A. Severin, an elegant Swedish-born lady who was Miss Baruch's longtime friend and companion at the barony. Miss Severin, who first came to America 20 years ago, lived at Bellefield House (Miss Baruch's home at Hobcaw) with her for the last 13 years of her life. Their friendship began many years ago when they met in Paris on one of Belle's numerous trips to Europe.

Miss Severin serves as one of the trustees of The Belle W. Baruch Foundation which was created to fulfill Belle's plans for the barony. Although she has many ties in Europe and other interests such as horticulture and gourmet cooking, Miss Severin has dedicated herself unreservedly to fulfilling her friend's wishes for the vast property.

Besides acting as a gracious hostess for persons visiting Hobcaw on Foundation business, Miss Severin represents the Foundation in its day-to-day management decisions concerning the property and follows closely the progress of the various research projects. One of the first grants made in accordance with Miss Baruch's will went to Clemson University the year after her death. Foundation trustees had assigned top priority to a program of teaching and research in forestry, and the grant created The Belle W. Baruch Professorship in Forestry in July 1965 at Clemson, the state's only college or university with a forestry school and programs of teaching and research in the subject.

Since then Clemson's role in Hobcaw's future has expanded greatly.

Under the terms of a 1968 agreement with the Foundation trustees, the University created an agency to carry out the Foundation's research and educational programs. This agency is The Belle W. Baruch Research Institute in Forestry, Wildlife Science, and Marine Biology of Clemson University.

Being Member Of FCA Not Easy

A university campus is made up of numerous organizations, all of them contributing to student life in some form or another.

There are social fraternities, professional groups, area clubs, others dedicated to service and leadership, religious unions and foundations—all serving a particular segment of student needs.

Membership in some organizations is just about automatic. In others, the membership is voted on. In some, it's who you know.

But one of the hardest to be a member of is the Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

It's not that there's any long ritual to memorize, or hold a grade point ratio to a certain level. There are only two requirements to be a member of the FCA. First, one has to be an athlete (or coach); and second, one must be willing to bear witness to his spiritual convictions in every daily experience. For most, the latter requirement is the hardest.

The FCA is an interracial and interdenominational movement, embracing both Protestants and Roman Catholics. Genuine spiritual solidarity is a result of a Christ-centered approach. Loyalty to one's church is a prime emphasis in all its programs.

Athletes and coaches across the nation are discovering more and more each day the importance of sharing spiritual truths and mutual encouragement through the huddle/fellowship program of the FCA.

Members of the huddle (high school) and fellowship (college), as well as the community adult group (chapter), are the FCA's local implementation of its national purpose, which is: To confront athletes and coaches, and through them the youth of the nation, with the challenge and adventure of following Christ and serving Him through the fellowship of the church and in their vocations.

A strong fellowship of the FCA exists here at Clemson. Assistant football coaches George MacIntyre and Doug Barfield are co-advisors of the local group.

Footballers Dave Farnham and Charlie Mayer are currently president and vice president respectively of the fellowship.

Though administered by Clemson, this Institute's research and educational activities provide opportunities for and include contributions by students and staff scientists in the colleges and universities throughout South Carolina.

Clemson has launched a comprehensive management program for the 7,500 acres of forested lands at Hobcaw, an Indian word meaning "between the waters." The forest contains a great diversity of species and stands, offering ideal opportunities for research and education in silvics and forestry practices.

Miss Baruch's legacy has given the state's academic community an immense new outdoor laboratory along the coast with a fantastic potential for research to benefit the entire Palmetto State. And as a result of the Institute's activities, research apparatus and Clemson scientists have become familiar sights from the sands of DeBordieu Beach through the estuarine areas, swamps, marshes, and forests of Hobcaw Barony.

Belle Baruch's decision meant a new life and purpose for the place where she spent "many happy hours," as she said in her will.

"This is Belle's life that she wanted to give to South Carolina," says Miss Severin, "and I want South Carolinians to appreciate it."

Monthly meetings are held by the Clemson FCA and current topics are discussed with respect to Christian principles in an effort to bring Christianity and everyday living together.

One of the major activities of the members is filling speaking engagements to different organizations at schools, churches and other functions witnessing their Christian beliefs.

Some churches on the Clemson campus also utilize FCA members in their Sunday morning services to give the invocation, read the Scripture or offer the prayer.

The FCA is not quite a quarter of a century old. It was in 1947 that Don McClanen, a young University of Oklahoma student and coach, gave a three-minute talk on "Making My Vocation Christian" and got an idea: why not utilize the existing hero-worship of the athlete to make an effective witness for Jesus Christ?

From 1947 to 1954, the vision grew. Clergy such as Dr. Louis H. Evans, Sr., renowned Presbyterian minister; businessmen, such as Paul Benedum of Pittsburgh; and sports figures such as Branch Rickey, Carl Erskine, and others, were contacted, became enthused and put their prayers and prestige behind McClanen's dream.

It would be difficult to pinpoint just what could be called the most important phase of the overall FCA movement.

But one of them would have to be the national summer conferences, the first of which was held nine years after McClanen's FCA idea was born with 256 in attendance.

This summer "inspiration and perspiration" has provided the impetus for the activities of the school year and serves as a yardstick to measure FCA's growth and influence.

Clemson was the site of one of the 17 summer conferences held throughout the nation in 1970. Altogether, over 8,500 attended these conferences, and 11,750 turned out for the final Weekend of Champions rally in Jacksonville, Fla.

While the numbers increase, the goals remain the same: fellowship with other athletes, learning from those at the top, competition in a variety of sports, family fun, and a time to share the Christian faith. And a chance, perhaps, to experience what one athlete found; "I came to conference to see my gods. I heard my gods talking about their God and, when I left, their God was my God."

Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A.

Our Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe at Portland Head Light, Ma

Chevelle for 1972. It fits more families, more budgets, more garages and more vacation

It fits so well that in the last eight years it has become an American standard—a yardstick to measure how far your money can go. And how much comfort and room your money can buy.

Our Chevelle fits families so well, in size and price, it's become America's favorite mid-size car. This year we've added improved pollution controls and a long lasting generator, among other things. Improvements with a purpose. We want your 1972 Chevelle to be the best car you ever owned. It's our way of building a better way to see the U.S.A.

DEDICATION TO A CAUSE

Red Ritchie gave 45 years of his life as a professor at Clemson University.

And as most good professors — of which he was one — he taught many other meaningful things in the classroom which can't be found in the textbook.

Red Ritchie has seen a lot of boys come and go in his day. And he is proud of the heights many of them have attained in the business world.

He started out as an instructor at Clemson in 1926 and rose to be full professor in animal science before his retirement this past May. He, along with eight others, who combined had given nearly three centuries of teaching to the university, were awarded emeritus titles at special faculty ceremonies.

While teaching and watching over his Angus cattle were his first loves, Red Ritchie also overlapped in another capacity for the last 18 years before his retirement.

He became the Clemson faculty chairman of athletics in 1955. But even before that, he was getting his feet wet in a field that was to take much of his time and energy.

This was in the early part of 1953 when Clemson and six other schools decided to desert the Southern Conference and form the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Dr. Lee W. Milford was faculty chairman at the time, but Ritchie attended the first meetings during the formation of the ACC.

He succeeded Milford in 1955 and he kept the post of faculty chairman for 16 years — longer than any other person in the conference — retiring early in 1971.

Ritchie was one of the granite pillars during the early years when the ACC was struggling to attain national prominence. He watched and worked and listened and was one of the ones instrumental in bringing the ACC to the stature it carries today.

Thirteen men have served as president of the ACC in its 18 years of existence, three of them twice, but Ritchie is the only person to serve three terms.

He was first chosen in the spring of 1958 for a year in the top seat. He was also president in 1964-65 and again in 1970-71. With his pending retirement at the university, he resigned in January of this year in order that another person could be appointed and attend the annual meetings of the NCAA.

Robert R. (Red) Ritchie

At the ACC meeting this past spring a resolution was read recounting the long service rendered by Ritchie to Clemson and the conference. In appreciation for his loyalty, devotion and dedication for the betterment of athletics for nearly two decades, he and Mrs. Ritchie were presented a color television set for their retirement years.

But long before there was any talk about an ACC, Ritchie had his hand in sports. When IPTAY was formed in 1934, he and Hoke Sloan, another old timer around Clemson, used to go out and beat the bushes getting memberships. There were some Doubting Thomases about Clemson's scholarship club, but Ritchie, Sloan and some others kept plugging away, and they played a big part in helping make IPTAY what it is today.

During World War II Ritchie was head of the physical training program for Air Force and engineering trainees who were stationed at Clemson in the college detachment program.

The 65-year-old (he'll be 66 Nov 22nd) Ritchie is a native of Westgate, Iowa, which you won't find on most road maps. But it is big enough to command a zip code. To be a little more specific, Westgate is just a few miles west of Maynard, where he graduated from high school, and a couple of miles east of Buckcreek. Waterloo is about 25 miles to the southwest.

After high school Ritchie attended Iowa State College where he earned a BS degree in agriculture. Except for a slight detour to Nashville to teach at Peabody College in the summer of 1926, and again in 1927, it was a straight shot from Ames to Clemson.

Only for his return to Iowa State in 1938 to earn his masters in agriculture and for a two-year (1948--50) trip to Japan as a livestock consultant for the U. S. Government, the Ritchies have always been at Clemson.

Active in civic affairs, Ritchie is a member and past president of both the Kiwanis and Fellowship Clubs at Clemson. He was chairman of the Pickens County Rationing Board 1942-45, and holds honorary memberships in the Block and Bridle and Block 'C' Clubs.

One of Red Ritchie's summertime hobbies is picking blackberries for his wife, the former Mary Leighton (Tootsie) Mills of Clemson, to can. He is also called on to judge cattle at numerous shows during the year.

But if Robert R. (Red) Ritchie had his choice of things to do, it would probably be teach a class in the morning and go to an athletic event in the afternoon.

Red Ritchie looks over some of the Angus cattle, which has been a part of his life for nearly five decades.

THE MARYLAND SERIES . . .

Clemson, after a long uphill struggle, pulled even in the series against Maryland last year when the Tigers used long runs on punt and interception returns to down the Terps, 24-11.

The series, which started in 1952, is second youngest only to Virginia on Clemson's schedule this year. But since these two teams started playing 19 years ago, they haven't missed a season since, where there have been four misses with the Cavaliers.

Maryland in 1952 was riding the crest under the watchful eye of the late Jim Tatum. They weren't in the Top 10 that year, after finishing third a year earlier, but they nonetheless, defeated the Tigers, 28-0.

In 1953 when they were ranked first in both polls, Clemson was again shutout (20-0), and the Tigers did not dent the scoreboard for the third straight year in 1954, 16-0.

Maryland was riding high again in 1955 when the Terps came to Death Valley. But Clemson was also undefeated in the Atlantic Coast Conference and the winner of this game was going to Miami to play Oklahoma in the Orange Bowl.

Clemson jumped into a 12-0 lead, and it is said that Coach Frank Howard sent one of his managers down to the local grocery store to buy a half dozen lemons that he planned to present Tatum at the end of the game.

But players like Bill Walker, Bob Pellegrini, Ed Vereb and Mike Sandusky rallied the Terps in the second half for a 25-15 victory.

Clemson was to gain a 6-6 tie in 1956, and in 1957 and 1958, recorded its first wins off the Terps. This was during the three-year stint of Tommy Mont at Maryland.

Tom Nugent took over the Terps in 1959 and he and Howard began a word battle which was to last seven years. Nugent won the first three games by a total of eight points, before Clemson won a pair and Nugent grabbed the last two before leaving.

In the past five years, Maryland has had three different coaches and Clemson has won all five games. Each team has now won nine apiece and there has been one tie.

Maryland holds a 5-4 edge on the Tigers in Death Valley, one of the few teams that do. A win for the Tigers today could even that mark and also give Clemson the series lead.

My, how the old neighborhood has changed.

Three hundred years ago, the Keowee Valley was a great Cherokee trading center. And you should see it now. Now, it's the site of our Keowee-Toxaway Visitors Center.

Where you can see first hand huge nuclear reactors taking shape outside. Where you can learn the secrets of the atom. Where you can visit the past, the present, the future of power and get the answers to all those questions you've always wanted to ask. It's an exciting, award-winning exhibition with spectacular demonstrations you can operate yourself. And dramatic display chambers filled with sight and sound. All at no charge. It's located near the intersection of SC 183 and SC 130, north of Clemson, S. C. A short hop from I-85, US-123, US-25, or US-64. And you're welcome anytime from 10 to 5 weekdays, 1 to 6 on Sundays, holidays included. For an illustrated booklet, contact any Duke Power office or write the Visitors Center, P. O. Box 308, Clemson, S. C. 29631.

Come. Bring a picnic lunch and a boat, if you like. And see this fantastic place.

CONTRIBUTIONS INCREASE

The 37th IPTAY year closed this past August 31st, and for the seventh consecutive year, the club noted an increase in contributions.

The total amount given during the fiscal year of IPTAY amounted to over $376,000. The goal set for the next 12 months is $500,000.

IPTAY, which stands for I Pay Twenty A Year, is Clemson's scholarship club and it is solely through these means that the Tigers are able to maintain a healthy athletic program in 11 intercollegiate sports.

Thousands of student-athletes have received an education through IPTAY, many of whom could not have attended college except through these means. And with the rising costs in the field of education each year, the need for additional memberships increases each year.

During the past year there were 6,658 regular $20 memberships, there were 1,621 $100 Gold Card members, 139 members who gave $250, 45 $500 Gold Carders, 18 $1,000 donors and three $2,000 members, who are known as IPTAY Scholarship Donors. This totals 8,484 of all memberships and represents 94 per cent of the goal set.

IPTAY was started — and still functions — with one purpose in mind, that is, to finance athletic scholarships at Clemson. Not one single penny contributed during the past 37 years has been used for any other purpose. All contributions are tax deductible.

From the records available, there were 185 people who were members of IPTAY during that first year of 1934-35. Over a third of these are now deceased, but better than 60 per cent of those still living are members today and over a fifth of them are Gold Card members.

The late Dr. Rupert H. (Rube) Fike was the father of IPTAY. It was his idea that something should be done to support athletics at Clemson. His thought was being churned around when the Tigers were at one of their lowest depths of football. The team had won only seven games, while losing 17 and tying five in three years.

The idea of the seven people who started IPTAY was to get 100 more members. They never dreamed IPTAY would become one of the foremost scholarship organizations in America.

Tiger athletic teams have won numerous conference championships, not to mention many individual honors.

IPTAY is another way to spell Clemson athletics.

1971 - 72 BASKETBALL OUTLOOK

Taylor (Tates) Locke
Head Basketball Coach

Bill Clendinen
Assistant Basketball Coach

George Hill
Assistant Basketball Coach

Cliff Malpass
Assistant Basketball Coach

Tates Locke enters his second season as head coach of the Clemson basketball team and his optimistic vein is running warmer than a year ago.

Not only does Locke have five returnees from last year's 9-17 team, but he has brought in three junior college transfers, has four players advancing from the freshman team, two of whom averaged 46.7 points between them, plus a red shirt sophomore.

Dave Angel, who stands 6-11, led the team in scoring and rebounding as a sophomore in the last campaign, and he is joined by another starter, Bud Martin. Other juniors back are Joe Cooley, Craig Mobley and John Williams. Bo Hawkins is the lone senior.

Locke plans to blend his four rising sophomores — Gale Housley, Dennis Odle, Terrell Suit and Mitch Uzzle — with these upperclassmen and JUCO's Anthony Brown, Mel Francisco and Danny Miller and holdout Mike Browning.

Brown led nearby Anderson Junior College in scoring with a 20.6 mark, Francisco averaged 15.4 points and 16 rebounds for Brevard JC in Cocoa, Fla., and Miller was the leading scorer for Ranger (Tex.) JC.

Locke has signed what some call "the best group of basketball recruits in Clemson history" and he also has Marty Paterson, a 6-9 transfer from The Citadel, sitting out this season with three years of eligibility remaining.

Photographers covering Clemson's home games have some of the finest facilities to be found anywhere, in addition to a home crew of photographers who are ready to assist in any way possible.

Cameramen look for ideal working conditions, ample working room and an atmosphere conducive to their needs. All of these can be found in the Clemson press box.

Movie crews filming the game for Clemson and the visiting team have a 27-foot open section right in the middle of the second deck of the press box which will easily accommodate six movie tripods.

One flight up is a 35-yard long "front row" for still cameras and those filming for TV. No one is too far off the 50-yard line with a good angle afforded everyone who shoots from the top deck.

Photographers, as well as sportswriters covering Clemson's home games, have become accustomed to the third floor of the press box. Behind the row of cameras is the famous buffet served for those covering the game where the finest of food is enjoyed picnic style from the "Top of the Valley."

This year facilities for the latest thing in filing press copy are being installed. Many sportswriters now use a telecopier where copy is fed into a machine from the press box and it comes out at the specified newspaper, ready for the composing room.

Chief photographer Charles Haralson and his assistants, Tom Shockley, Hal Smith and Dave Garrison, are on hand for two reasons: to shoot game films for the athletic staff; and to assist visiting photographers covering the game should an emergency arise.

Harry Durham and Jim Burns head up the Clemson Communications Center and devote their time seeing that all runs well, and at the same time, always willing to lend a helping hand.

Game action is shot during the first half of each home game by a staff photographer and a set of pictures (five or six prints) is furnished to any news media requesting this service before the end of the game.

This rapid service is done through a Fotorite machine, a rapid print processing, and is the only one in use in the Atlantic Coast Conference and one of the few in the nation used as such.

During the past nine seasons approximately 3,700 photos have been given free to the press by this process, thanks to the closely-knit and cooperative crew of the Communications Center.

Radio Adds Frosh Games...

Clemson football games can be heard in every corner of South Carolina, and in many fringe areas of Georgia and North Carolina. And this is the way it should be. The Tigers have more fans than anyone in the state and the Clemson Football Network tries to reach all of those unable to come to the game.

The network enters its 18th year in 1971, with Jim Phillips, sports director of WFBC-TV in Greenville, again handling the play-by-play for the third straight year.

Jeff Odenwald, general manager of the Greenwood Braves of the Western Carolinas League, who has had seven years of broadcast experience, will handle the color for the first time.

To assure the best possible professional broadcast, Jim Lynn of the WFBC engineering staff, will serve as producer-director of the broadcast.

The network is being expanded this season to include the three freshman home games. All of these games are to be played Monday afternoon instead of Friday and will not interfere with any high school games.

For the second straight year there will be a pre-game as well as a post-game show by Clemson head coach, Hootie Ingram.

The network will sign on 20 minutes before kickoff and stay on the air 10 minutes following the wrap-up period when Phillips and Ingram will comment on what to expect in the game, then just a few minutes away; as well as presenting quick observations on the game just completed.

Phillips has had 18 years of broadcasting experience. He came from his native Ohio where he was affiliated at various times with stations in Alliance, Ashland and Lima. Before coming with the Clemson network, Phillips did the play-by-play for the Kent State University Network.

Odenwald, also a native of Ohio, graduated from Ohio State in 1969. While in college he worked four and a half years with WBNS-TV in Columbus, going from the floor crew to the production staff and covered all facets of television production. He also worked with the Ohio State closed circuit TV network as producer-director.

Since going to Greenwood in Sept., 1969, Odenwald has done a daily 15-minute sports show on Station WG-SW and last winter did commentary for all 30 Lander College basketball games over Greenwood's channel 2.

Because of one night game last fall the Clemson Network averaged 55 stations a game, but should return to about a 58-59 average this fall, making it one of the nation's largest university-operated networks.

IPTAY--

-Special Recognition-

Several thousand former Clemson student-athletes, as well as several hundred currently enrolled at the university, depend solely on contributions from individuals and firms for their education. This is administered through the Clemson IPTAY Club, which since 1934, has used the monies received for athletic scholarships only. Clemson has set an outstanding example for other educational institutions throughout the nation with its IPTAY program. Clemson athletics would be nowhere near the high plateau it maintains today without these individuals and firms who believe in the Clemson program and contribute to its success. It is with pleasure, and with their permission, that we pay tribute to those so vitally interested in the Clemson athletic program.

Letterman's Association . . .

The Association of Tiger Lettermen of Clemson University was organized this past summer by former students and athletes who are interested in promoting the continuing athletic excellence of Clemson, as well as affording the opportunity for fellowship among active members, honorary members, student athletes and members of the university's athletic department.

Charlie Bussey, a quarterback on the 1954-55-56 teams, the latter of which played in the 1957 Orange Bowl, was elected the association's first president.

Doc Morgan was chosen vice president and Gene Willimon was elected secretary-treasurer.

The constitution of the organization stipulates that there shall be 12 directors, with at least six sports represented and no more than three directors from any one sport.

Named to serve on the first board were: Phil Prince, Gil Rushton and Bill Hudson representing football; Ames Wells and Banks McFadden representing basketball; Harold Stowe, Doug Kingsmore and Jim Coleman,

There will be a drop-in for members on the third floor of Fike Field House, at 11 a.m. on the day of each home football game.

representing baseball; Jimmy Wells and Marshall Walker representing track; Bill Yarborough representing golf; and George Bennett representing cheerleaders.

There are two classes of membership in the association. Active membership is open to any former student of Clemson who received a letter from the athletic department in any sport; and a person shall be eligible for an honorary membership upon the recommendation of three fourths of the board of directors and upon subsequent approval by a majority in attendance at any associational meeting.

Coach Frank Howard, former athletic director and head football coach at Clemson, is the first and only honorary member of the association thus far.

After several preliminary meetings an organizational meeting was held at Clemson June 25th at which time officers were elected and a constitution adopted. All former students awarded a letter by the Athletic Department are invited to become a member by completing the blank below and mailing as shown.
